DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Emstead Farmhouse is a large frame dwelling two and a half storeys in height, three bays long by two bays deep. The house has a storey and a half in height and one-bay square. The house has a gable roof with metal roof over wood shingle with box cornice, bevel molding. The exterior surface has a mixture of wood and aluminum siding. In the gable walls are brick inside end chimneys. The house has a stone foundation and full cellar. The facade has a central entrance with sidelights and transom. Protecting the entrance is a one-storey front porch with brackets beneath the edge of the porch roof. The window sash is 6/6 except for the eye brow windows which are 3/3. The windows have capped frames and at one time had louvered shutters.

The house has a central stair hall with an open string stair (rounded) with walnut hand rail and newel. There is a mantel in the east end which has a plain frieze with shelf supported by pilasters. The cooking fireplace in the rear wing has a crane. Alongside this fireplace is a small stair to the next storey which is enclosed by finely beaded board and batten paneling.

One of the floor joists in the cellar has a name and date both of which are illegible.

There are two frame outbuildings which date from the early 20th century; a small corn crib and a barn.
